Vocabulary

mystery science

Lesson: How can we protect a mountain town from falling rocks?

direction	the path an object takes as it moves experiment	a test used to discover new information about a question model	a pretend version of something that scientists use when the real thing is too big, small, or complicated to work with push	to move an object away from you