Vocabulary

Lesson: Why do plants grow flowers?

mystery science

offspring

babies

mystery science

reproduction

a stage in the life cycle of living things when they have offspring

mystery science

seed

a part of a plant that can grow into a baby plant

mystery science

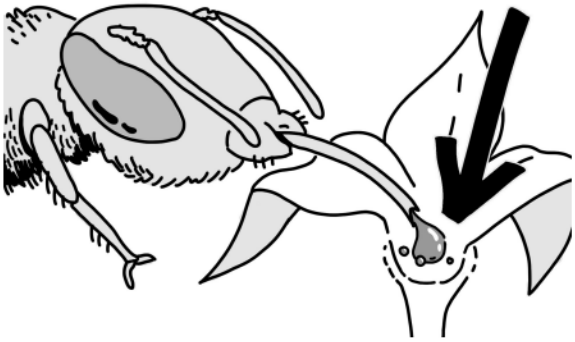

flower

the reproductive part of some plants that can make seeds

mystery science

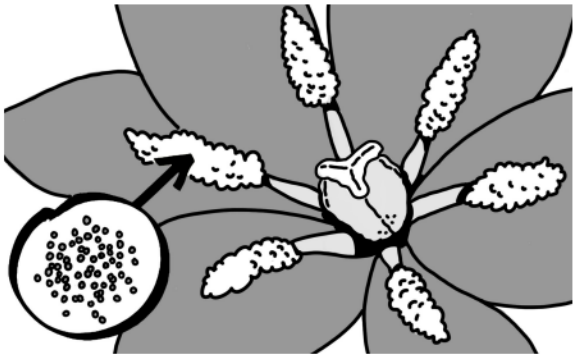

nectar

a sugary liquid that plants make

mystery science

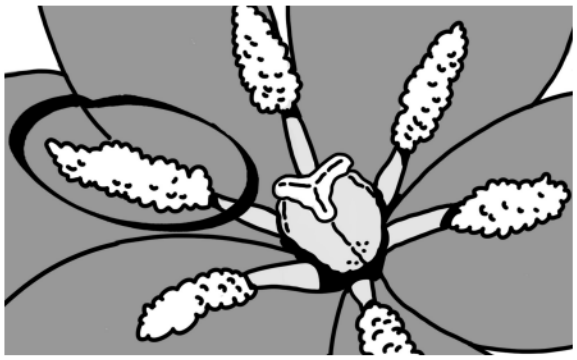

pollen

mystery science

a powder plants make that is involved in plant reproduction

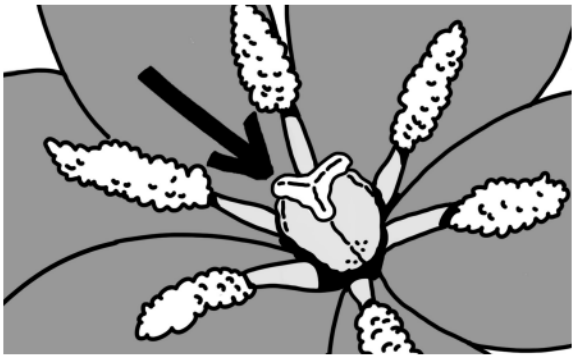

stamen

mystery science

the part of a flower that has pollen

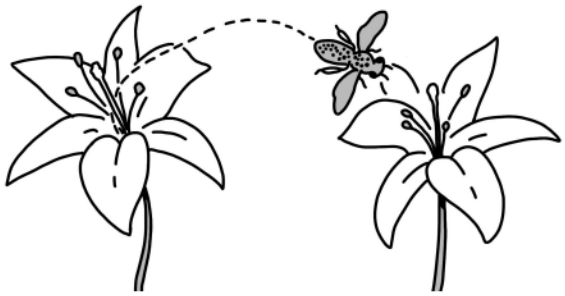

stigma

mystery science

the sticky part of a flower that pollen can stick to

pollination

mystery science

the process of moving pollen from one part of a flower (the stamen) to another part of a flower (the stigma)

model

mystery science

a pretend version of something that scientists use when the real thing is too big, small, or complicated to work with