

Lesson: Where can you find whales in a desert?

---

|                  |                                                                                                                       |
|------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| claim     | to say or write an idea                                                                                               |
| desert    | a habitat that is usually hot and that gets very little rain                                                          |
| evidence  | information that can be used to support or reject an idea                                                             |
| forest    | a habitat with lots of trees                                                                                          |
| fossil    | the remains of a plant or animal that lived a very, very long time ago                                                |
| grassland | a habitat with mostly grasses and very few trees                                                                      |
| habitat   | the place where an animal or plant lives                                                                              |
| model     | a pretend version of something that scientists use when the real thing is too big, small, or complicated to work with |
| observe   | to pay close attention to something                                                                                   |
| ocean     | a habitat that is large area of salt water                                                                            |
| polar     | a habitat that is very cold                                                                                           |
| quarry    | a large, deep pit that people remove rock from                                                                        |
| trait     | something you can observe about a living thing, such as the broad fins of a fish                                      |